First of all, we are the best example of friendship you'll ever come across. We have worked together for years in everything except the same company. We learned a lot working together, and what we have together now is different from what we had before. We have added many new facets to our friendship, making us stronger and better. We are each other's best friend, and that is what counts. The journey we are on together is so much more important than the destination. My life is complete without her, and she is the same way. There is nothing we can't do together, and nothing we couldn't face together. I can't imagine what life would be like if it wasn't for her. She is my best friend, my confidant, and my partner in crime. We have never been apart and we always will be together. We are best friends. We share almost everything. We share ideas and dreams and we discuss them together. We are best friends. We are best friends. We share almost everything. We share ideas and dreams and we discuss them together. We are best friends, but, in a way, we are opposites. We share nothing. We both care for our own lives and 2d92ce491b
