What is the difference between the new and old versions? The new versions use the latest technologies and some of them are available to all users. The main difference is that the old versions of AutoCAD 2000 and AutoCAD 2002 were created with only a AutoCAD editor and they have never been updated with new features and fixes after the release of AutoCAD 2009, as their successors, AutoCAD 2009 and AutoCAD 2010, have. In other words, there are no new features, no new tools, and no fixes in the old versions. In fact, if you have the old versions, they are still useful, but with the following limitations: • The interface has never been updated, and it is outdated. • You cannot connect to the network, to use the functionality provided by applications

(EDB, JXplorer, Java, etc.). • You cannot connect to the Internet and to the network simultaneously, without requiring to install a third-party software (e.g., Serial Talk). • You cannot connect to any online database with the older versions. • You cannot transfer files to and from any software that is not supported by the new version of AutoCAD. When can I download the new version of AutoCAD? You can download the new version of AutoCAD when it becomes available in the AutoCAD web store. How do I update the previous version of AutoCAD? Please upgrade AutoCAD from AutoCAD 2009 to AutoCAD 2010 using one of the following methods: • If you have a Windows operating system and the AutoCAD 2010 is installed, use the AutoCAD 2010 Upgrade installer. • If you have a Windows operating system and the AutoCAD 2010 is not installed, use the AutoCAD 2009 Application Installation v2.0. • If you have a Mac operating system and the AutoCAD 2010 is installed, use the AutoCAD 2010 Upgrade installer. • If you have a Mac operating system and the AutoCAD 2010 is not installed, use the AutoCAD 2009 Application Installation v2.0.
