What should I do? Q: can we use less than 64 MB heap size in a web application I have a web application which need to handle more than 500000 records, but the problem is that we are not able to find the current heap size of the jvm which is using the application. As per our server configuration we cannot increase the RAM size, can anyone suggest us how to increase the heap size for jvm. I tried searching in the net and found that jvm can have heap size of less than 64 MB. Can we use the heap size less than 64 MB? A: Yes, you can use less than 64MB heap size. The only restriction is that you are not allowed to allocate more memory than the server's memory, i.e. if the server has 32GB of RAM, you can't allocate more than 32GB.
