There was a new patch today that disabled the integrated timeline rendering if the user does not have Adobe or Autodesk video editing applications installed on their computer. This fix should remove the error message you have seen and will allow the timeline to refresh as usual. We are in the process of verifying that this resolves the error for all users. If you have feedback or encounter any additional issues in this release, please do not hesitate to contact us at support@nextnext.com. We also appreciate any bug reports you submit through the error reporting in your Adobe or Autodesk applications. Version 1.8.5 released and available for all licensed Advene users. Happy Leap Day! We have deployed a patch that should resolve the automatic refresh of the timeline. If you are experiencing issues with this new patch, please re-open the application and retry to continue. Version 1.8.3 released and available for all licensed Advene users. Happy Leap Day! We have deployed a patch that should resolve the automatic refresh of the timeline. K-9 Mail as a mail client becomes official. The beta 2 release of the program was released today, and while it's still a Beta, it's safe to say it could be a mainstream mail client. If you were among those that didn't like the change of direction from Mutt to Thunderbird, don't worry - K-9 Mail won't be changing that much. K-9 Mail Beta 2 changes quite a bit from the last version. Version 1.3.16.1 of the program has a new menu system in it. The first menu item is Settings, which allows you to configure K-9 Mail to your liking. There's a new help menu with a number of commonly asked questions. The help menu also has a list of possible (live) changes you could make to the program. One of the big news items about K-9 Mail is the ability to import settings from old versions of the program. In the first release, this feature was disabled. The beta 2 release allows import of all settings from previous versions, at least until K-9 Mail is officially released. This release also adds some new features to the program. One of the biggest is the ability to have multiple user accounts on your system. K-9 Mail allows you to keep multiple mail
