Q: How to lock a cell to prevent user from editing it? In Excel, when I edit a cell, it is replaced by the current value in the cell and then I have to enter new data. I want to change it so that the data entered is the one that is already stored in the cell. I want to prevent any user from changing that value, so it can only be edited by one user.

A: Make the cell Locked. Type in the Locked property field: =Sheet1!$B$1 Then, either in the same field, or in a comment on the cell, write the name of the user that you want to be the only one able to edit the cell.

Google has quietly revised the look of Google Maps on iOS (iPhone, iPod Touch), Android and the Web to “bring you closer to the place and the people that matter most to you”, as the updated Maps app puts a new focus on adding relevant local information. The latest version of the service uses an artificial intelligence system to make suggestions for what places and people matter to you. But it doesn’t just pull together data for you. It shows you new things that are nearby, and new things to do nearby. Below, we share a video that takes a look at the update to the Maps app, which is being rolled out in the next few days. Google’s new Maps app for iOS has just received a fairly significant update. On iOS and Android, Google Maps has undergone a fairly substantial makeover. A lot of the data is still there, but Google has revised the design to make the most important parts of the app a bit clearer and more friendly. 80eaf3aba8

The application allows one to browse and search through a list of videos retrieved from YouTube. This task is facilitated through the main window, which displays the list of the videos related to the video clicked by the user. It also displays the categories and the number of views. One is able to save the link to the searched YouTube video in the program. This tool enables you to download video from YouTube to a local drive, therefore allowing you to burn or copy the content to an external device. In addition, you have the option of downloading only the thumbnail images of the video, its likes and subscribers. It is very important to set YouTube's cookie settings to allow the selection of the Video Properties' page, otherwise the connection will not be possible. In the Settings page, you have the possibility of setting up and editing the account, after that click on "Close". The last step is to go to the video you wish to download, click on the Share button and click on Download. How to use: After the video download is complete, you can open the program, locate the folder where the downloaded video is stored and click on the "Open Folder" button. How to install: 1. Launch the browser and open YouTube.com. If the page does not load, click on the "Try again" button. 2. Search for the video you want to download. 3. Click on the video. 4. Click on the download button. 5. Wait until the download is complete. 6. Open a new window in the download folder. 7. Open the folder and click on the file. 8. Open the file using a video player. It's a great piece of software to download videos from YouTube in a standalone format. The functions and menus are clear and simple. It even allows you to set the YouTube playlist as your default video downloader. The only thing is that it can't go beyond 10,000 hits, so if you are very close to this number, you might want to find another way to download videos from YouTube. OneWeb, a company that plans to build a large-scale broadband internet network, has unveiled its new concept video: It aims to combine terrestrial, satellite and cable technologies to provide broadband internet to the world. According to company CEO Richard Parsons, the company is currently building the foundational network and partnering with local carriers to lay the first miles of fiber and deploy cellular backhaul. The network will be similar to the
