- I'm not really sure how I feel about half of the half shown here. It sort of sums up who I am - living in Brooklyn, collecting "urban" art, buying books and movies at the thrift store, and adding funky charm to my day. A few weeks ago I discovered a great new thrift store down on Astor Place in New York City called The Book Peddler. I used to frequent this place in Minneapolis before moving to New York City, and it doesn't disappoint. Both the staff and inventory are great. Even better, they now have a section called "Designer Faq's" which contains really well-used copies of high-end fashion magazines like Interview, Nylon, Vogue... It's a great mix of vintage fashion with current fashion. Check it out: www.thebookpedler.com This seafood seasoning is called "Chung-Chung" by the Taiwanese cooking instructor in this documentary. It's a great DIY seasoning, and I often make it with different mixes. If you're in Taiwan, check out Hong Kong Liquor Co. for more Chung-Chung products. While on a sailboat trip in La Barrere Reserve in Quebec, we found this fantastic lookout with cross-in-flight pattern. It's a nice conversation piece.Akron University: The Akron University map we offer here is intended for
