Don't Get Taken by the Black Hat Tourist During the summer months, you can find travel agents in major cities offering cheap and convenient airline tickets. Unfortunately, many of these agents are black hats. They know exactly what they are doing, and they lure you in with some cheap airline tickets and give you false information and a lot of pressure. I've heard stories of people being told to go on the black hat's travel show and pay for the airline tickets and never ever get refunded for the money they paid for the tickets. This happened to someone in the Twin Cities at the Mall of America. There are plenty of other stories like this. So, be careful with travel agencies and don't take the bait. Get the airline tickets from the real airline companies, and you can trust that they'll give you good service and you can depend on your money being refunded if you are not satisfied with their service. People are even selling cars. They post ads on Craigslist and you can find cars for sale right on their front door. Perhaps even more interesting is that some people are selling products for huge sums of money on eBay. One young man, Jonathan Manning, who sold his business for $2.5 million
