What's New in the RegSvrHelper?

This application provides an alternative to RegSvr32 and will register or unregister DLL files from a simple interface. It is great for developers, as well as home users, who, for various reasons, need an additional DLL to run third-party programs. Our conclusion is that RegSvrHelper is a great utility that allows users to register or unregister DLL files without the burden of command-prompt operation. It is simple to use, does not require installation and will not add any new entries to the Windows registry. It also does not require any additional runtime software to accomplish its purpose. What's new in this version: This version has no new features. Applies to: Microsoft Windows XP SP2, SP3, SP4
Downloading Information RegSvrHelper can be downloaded from the developer's site for \$9.95. Reviews Great helper!!! Reviewer: t-emiksa Date: 2011-03-14 It's not the best utility, but its a good helper, easy to use. It works great for every version of windows, xp, 2000,2003,vista, windows 7 and windows 2008, you can just type on the run or save it to a shortcut and use it. Works great. I have been using RegSvrHelper for years with no problems. It is free and gives a good price. I use it to register drivers and DLL's for my games that I make. It works great and I had not problems. I use it on Windows XP, Windows 7, Windows Vista and Windows 8. I recommend it.Q: What can be said about the closure of  $\{(x_n) \subset \mathbb{R} : \lim_{n \rightarrow \infty} x_n = 0\}$  in  $\mathbb{R}$ ? The question is: Let  $XS$  be the closure of  $\{(x_n) \subset \mathbb{R} : \lim_{n \rightarrow \infty} x_n = 0\}$  in  $\mathbb{R}$  (That is,  $\{(x_n) \subset \mathbb{R} : \lim_{n \rightarrow \infty} x_n = 0\}$  is equal to  $XS$ ). Then, what can be said about the closure of  $XS$  in  $\mathbb{R}$ ? My attempt: By definition of the closure, we have  $\overline{\{(x_n) \subset \mathbb{R} : \lim_{n \rightarrow \infty} x_n = 0\}} = XS$ . The question asks us to compute  $\overline{\overline{\{(x_n) \subset \mathbb{R} : \lim_{n \rightarrow \infty} x_n = 0\}}}$
