Image caption The agricultural sector was most affected, with farmers losing their animals A snowstorm which has affected much of Ireland for two days has begun to clear, but is expected to cause further travel disruption. Up to 26cm (10in) fell in some places in Ireland's most mountainous parts. The severe weather caused transport delays, road closures and power cuts. Five trains were cancelled in Ulster, Northern Ireland, while an emergency was declared for County Dublin. Storm Emma is expected to follow a similar path to Storm Brendan, which also hit Ireland last week. Met Eireann has forecast that 26cm of snow will fall in counties Wicklow, Carlow, Kilkenny and Donegal over the next 24 hours, with up to 40cm in some places. The Department of Agriculture said the snow would cause further delays to livestock and agri-food sectors. Two semi-trailer loads of calves weighing about 50 tons each were bogged in a field near Oughterard in County Galway, One of the calves died. A second one was taken to an abattoir in Galway. "In some cases, livestock have already been moved to emergency centres, where they will be slaughtered," said a spokesperson for the Department of Agriculture and the Natural Resources, while a minister at Galway County Council. Storm Emma is expected to cause further travel disruption and bring hazardous driving conditions. One of the worst affected counties was County Donegal, where 91 centimetres of snow was reported between Letterkenny and Ardara. Overnight, around 20mm of rain fell there, causing the River Swilly and River Foyle to flood. Image caption Some roads were cut off, as snow piled up on the roofs of buildings Parts of County Sligo were among the worst affected, with several roads shut and mass power cuts declared in some regions after the storm. Many counties in Ireland, including parts of Munster, were affected by power cuts and road closures, primarily due to fallen trees. Some roads were closed, following felling of trees and branches. Image copyright Reuters Image caption Roads were blocked by falling trees Many cinemas and theatres in Ireland and Northern Ireland announced their closures for Saturday and Sunday. Transport Minister Shane Ross said the snow was worse than Brendan. "We haven't seen anything like this in Ireland," he said. "

What's New In Adobe Photoshop 2022 (version 23)?

Free Oreo Ice Cream In the off season, Oreo Ice Cream bars can be a nice treat. No bigger versions of the Oreo bar with cookies in it, just the ice cream ice cream in the Oreo shape. It's delicious with just a drizzle of chocolate sauce or coffee. If you're ever in Seattle, be sure to stop by Tartine Bread and open up the new shop in the International District. The owners of the original Tartine Bakery stopped in to the new shop one evening and offered a little tour of the new space. Make sure you try their deli sandwiches! Free Bikram Yoga If you're a constant New Yorker, being a little under-the-weather still in the off-season and suffering from sore muscles, a good way to get healthy is to head over to the Bikram Yoga studio on the Upper East Side. Sessions start at $20 and about 14 different classes are offered. In case you haven't heard of Bikram Yoga, it's a very hot yoga style that works your muscles as opposed to just stretching them. In the Bikram style of yoga, a room filled with about 40 degrees and set at 65% humidity is provided.

It's impossible to tell if you are actually breathing because of the temperature and humidity. If you're looking to keep yourself in shape in the off-season, you could always try out one of these free workouts. If a workout class doesn't keep you in shape like yoga, you could try out one of these free workouts. If you want to avoid paying to buy a membership or have to spend hours in class with a mediocre teacher at a low-end studio that could lead to injury, you could try out a free workout from one of these organizations.

Free Daily Community Yoga Get fit at your local community space. Instead of paying for expensive gym memberships, these free community gym classes will give you enough time to exercise at your own pace and keep you in shape. The movement in these community classes will also help you to cultivate a better sense of balance and will keep your body from getting stiffer over the colder months. Fitness centers have a habit of becoming commercialized. You can often find machines that have special effects when used. The latter are rather entertaining, but they'll leave you feeling sore if you're used to exercising at home. If you want to keep yourself in shape
