BlockCreator - Create your ownBlock-based puzzle game in 3D with more than 20 levels, collectstars, and unlock new elements. PracticeRobot - The practiceRobot game app helps kids practice their math skills with fun sounds, animations and graphics. PracticeRobot asks kids: Which number is most equal to fifty? What number is less than five times twenty? Which number is most evenly divisible by four? Each question is answered by showing which block is used to make up the numbers. Little Racers - In the Little Racers game, kids can race as a new DJI Mavic drone, a Lightning, a Kawasaki KX250, a Ducati Monster, a Harley Davidson, a Rover, a Porsche, a TechCycle, or a Zombie. Kids can then take their virtual avatar to three different skateboarding locations where they can collect the various items on the board and activate collectible power ups with their score. Super Pig - When kids play the Super Pig game, they can help a Super Pig, a genius pig, clean his pig house by picking up waste and dropping it into garbage cans. Kids get points for doing this, and points make them look smart. Creator Academy - The Creator Academy game app teaches kids to code using blocks that help them understand and implement coding algorithms using blocks for activities such as: building with blocks, math operations, puzzles, and a final game of 2048. Kids can then continue to build new coding games on their own or share their games with friends to play together. Puzzlenuts - In Puzzlenuts, kids can launch objects into their game scene. They can use blocks to build things like stairs and bridges, making their game scene grow bigger. Kids can pull cannons and launch balls that can create fun games by colliding with the balls in their game scene. Minecraft - Kids can use the Minecraft game app to play various types of games including: build anything, build with friends, explore, create, and play adventure games. Kids can use blocks to create anything from a spaceship to a rocket. Moveit - Moveit is a virtual reality game where kids can play around in a zombie apocalypse scenario. Kids can use their legs and arms to control their character as they avoid zombies on the road and fight them off. Realm Royale - In Realm Royale, kids can create and play their own online 3D battle arena game. Using cubes, hats, and weapons,

It was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1983. It has been converted to apartments. History Kiswaha Mills is a two-story, fourteen bay brick structure built in 1913. It has wide, flat coursed buff brick walls. The brick is laid with small, roughly matched field brick and is mortared on the interior. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles. The mill is one of a number of similar mills built near the end of the 19th century and early 20th century by the Wiltse brothers, who ran the mill from 1905 until they were forced to close it in 1958. The mill is the last of the group. At its closure, it had the distinction of being the only Wiltse mill whose original owner had not died. It also was the last of the group that was not sold to a larger firm. At its closure, the mill was purchased by Donald Caldwell, president of the Caldwell Manufacturing Company. His son, Howard Caldwell, took over the mill after his father's retirement and took the name of the business. He formed a partnership with his brother Samuel Caldwell to form Caldwell Manufacturing Company in 1983, which would continue to operate the mill until 1996. That year it was purchased by Tony Faltine. The current owners are Michael and Karen Faltine. Description The mill is an L-shaped building. It is oriented on a 30° angle to both Front Street and Todd Mill Road. It has been converted to apartments.
